The teachers of the Woodside school building gave a most delightful affair in the school building on Monday afternoon after school hours out of compliment to one of their number, Miss Blanch Sanford, whose marriage occurs on the 23d of this month.

Everything was a complete surprise to the guest of honor and when she with the other teachers gathered in the office at four o'clock in accordance with the request of the principal, Miss Anna Fife, she was overjoyed to see a completely appointed table laden with good things. All then sat down to the serving of an elaborate two course dinner. The color scheme of the table decorations was pink and white, the school colors which were also carried out in the many dainty viands served. Place cards bearing miniature hand painted bridges the work of Miss Alspach.

A Promoter of Good Citizenship

In a recent interview in the New York Times, Mr. McEwan of New York, said:

"A truly local and wisely managed building association has been appropriately called more than once an institution for the promotion of good citizenship."

Newark's great building association, The Old Home, has for 30 years been a "promoter of good citizenship" in Newark. Thousands have been aided in buying their own homes, and many other thousands have been encouraged in systematic saving.

Finding a Good Woman.

Sidney Lanier says, "The finding of a good woman depends largely upon the kind of man who is looking for her." And a wise man of old says somewhat to the effect that the price of a good woman is above rubies. So that if a man wants to find this priceless jewel he needs first to look to himself, if he wishes to insure his getting a fair bargain.

Sidney Lanier is simply putting into another form the old old saying, "What we look for, we find." The man whose idea of woman is low will be satisfied with a woman whose tastes and aspirations are on a plane with his own. If to him a "good woman" means a fashionably dressed feminine who delights in bridge, the theater, the social whirl generally, that is the kind he will seek. If the term is synonymous to him with a good housekeeper, a frugal and economical soul, then he will endeavor to find this sort. On the other hand, if a good woman means all that is true and tender and sympathetic, all that is high and fine in her ideals, all that is companionable and inspiring mentally, then this will be his quest.

It is after all, the kind of man or woman we are that determines what we find in life. Life is full of all good things. It is our definition of good that determines whether we pluck the lesser or the greater good. Since then, what one finds comes back after all to what one seeks, it behoves one to seek the best, one wants the greatest happiness. Why take the less if one can have the

BRIDAL LORE FOR JUNE WEDDINGS.

Materials for the Bridal Gown. There is a savor of the ecclesiastical in the bridal gowns of today—chiffon cloth, chiffon satin and even in moths.

More is also favored by some brides, and the embroidery and its cost are making marriage almost prohibitory—love laughs not only at locksmiths but at dressmakers.

Modified princess gowns are the keynotes to bridal modes. Front panels are all embroidery, and trains may be slung from the shoulder after the Watteau period and effects.

Modified draped over the bust is very becoming, especially if laid diagonally from right shoulder and the left draped with lace.

DECORATION FOR WEDDING BREAKFAST.

A large round table is set with drawn work or hand-crocheted lace seated the following: Miss Elsie Sanford, Miss Um Marshall, Miss Anna Copeland, Miss Ailsa Alspach and Miss Ida Davis, and Miss Anna Fife. When the bride's cake was cut the coin was found by Miss Sanford, the thimble and button by Miss Alspach, and the pin by Miss Anna Copeland. Miss Edith Mackey acted as toastmistress and the following toasts were given: Miss Marshall, To Our Bride; Mrs. Newland, To the Board of Education; Miss Simons, To Our Principal; Miss Fife Spoons.

Following the banquet a spoon was given Miss Sanford and consisted of spoons both great and small, wooden, iron and silver, all of which she will find most useful in her new home.

Mrs. Rose Wright of 4-1 West Church street entertained with a six o'clock dinner on Thursday evening out of compliment to Mr. and Mrs. Guy Wilson of Bensenville. Guests were spread for twelve guests.

Mrs. Bernard Sheridan of North Morris street celebrated her seventieth birthday anniversary very pleasantly on Thursday with a family dinner at six o'clock. Pink and white carnations formed the chief decorations of the table of table where an elaborate course feast was served to the following: Mrs. Bernard Sheridan, Mr. and Mrs. James Conner, Mr. and Mrs. James Sheridan, Misses Margaret and Helen Conner, Misses Anna and Louise Sheridan, Mrs. W. E. Sheridan of Louisburg, Ky., and Miss Celia Schaeffer of Columbus.

The Ladies' Division club was delightedly entertained by Mrs. Fred Parks of Maple avenue on Thursday afternoon and the hours passed pleasantly in an informal way, following which a dainty repast was served to the following members and guests: Madeline Nelson Vanatta, Charles Miller, Guy Hamilton, Lulu Russell, Mr. C. Russell, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Woodward, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bowman, Mr. and Mrs. Yantz, Mrs. Culter, Messrs. Dan Bowman, Wellington Vandebark.

All departed at a late hour, after wishing Mrs. Vanatta many happy returns of the day.

The L. C. B. A. will hold a social meeting Wednesday evening, June 15 at 7:30 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Egan in Buckingham street.

Guaranteed and Absolutely Painless.

A corn cure that is painless and that will really do the work has finally been discovered. Heretofore, the poor sufferer from corns has been pestered with "drawing" salves and plasters that swell the corns, and has had finally to gouge out his corn and inflict upon himself still greater pain. With Hall's Painless Corn Cure all pain ceases on the first application, and then finally the corn comes right off easily and painlessly. You don't have to dig it out and run the risk of drawing blood, making your corns still more sore or getting blood poison.

Hall's Painless Corn Cure is easier to use than any other; it takes a few seconds to apply it. It is guaranteed absolutely in every case. You must be satisfied, or back goes your money.

THE DISGRACEFUL WHITE HOUSE INCIDENT

Scarcely ever in the history of our country has the Chief Executive's personality been more belittled than in the White House snub administered the other day to that distinguished Congressman, Francis Burton Harrison of New York. Mr. Harrison was engaged in the performance of an imposed duty. A delegation of Jewish rabbis were seeking diplomatic assistance for their afflicted countrymen in Russia, and they chose three eminent Congressmen to accompany them to the White House, at the head of which was Mr. Harrison. Because the Congressman in his official capacity had justly criticized the President in the Ballinger scandal, he was treated to this insult at the White House. And yet Congressman Francis Burton Harrison is President Taft's superior in intellect and every personal attribute that constitutes an eminent American publicist. The White House has been discredited in the eyes of all intelligent, fair minded people.

AGREEABLE CHANGE

A Republican editor, either through ignorance on his part or laboring under the delusion that his readers would not know any better, endeavored to argue that a governor in the discharge of official duties according to his oath of office could "support" the constitution without necessarily including the "interpretation" thereof.

Ohio had two governors like that in recent years and both of them are living, but neither of them was elected to a second term. Herrick and Harris "supported" the constitution but neither of them bothered about the interpretation thereof. Guibert and Wade Ellis and Walter Brown and Cox and Vorvus attended to the "interpretation," while Herrick and Harris did the "supporting" accordingly. Ohio is fortunate enough now to have a governor who is able to both interpret and support the constitution, and who is doing so according to the strict requirements of his oath of office.

MUCKMAKING.

An outcry is being made one more against what is now termed muckmaking, evidently for the purpose of putting the soft pedal on criticism of President Taft and his administration. Muckmaking is not pleasant or convenient but so long as President Taft, Ballinger, Wickenden, Senator Aldrich, Uncle Joe Cannon and their adherates go on making noise it will continue to be somebody's headache and a tax to rate it.

The danger of losing several seats in the United States Senate is what makes the reactionary Republicans extremely reluctant to admit Arizona and New Mexico with the probability of adding four to the Democratic membership.

OVER THE BILLION MARK.

NEW OIL FIELDS ARE BEING FOUND OVER COUNTRY

Marion County, Ill., furnishes Good Producers, as does also Southwestern Indiana—Local Conditions.

The search for new producing territory continues in all the high grade petroleum fields with little success. The most important of any of the late pools opened to date is near Sandoval in Marion County, Ill. This field is far removed from the real fields of the state. It looks as though an important field had been made, as the wells start from 100 to 700 barrels.

Another important field is in Southwestern Indiana, around Oakdale City, where some very fine producing wells are being brought in. This pool is rapid, extending northwest toward Pittsburgh, and Terre Haute, and is going to be the main attraction of Indiana. Another favored spot in Indiana is in the extreme eastern part of Randolph County, near the Indiana-Ohio state line, where several good producing wells have been uncovered during the past few months. Operations in that section are not so extensive, being about the same as in the older Indiana field, and there is sufficient gas to furnish fuel.

The Northwest Ohio field is going along with variations, as has been the case for the past dozen years. The work is confined to well developed territory and the wells that are drilling are located so that if oil is found, wells can be hooked right up to now and pumped without any additional cost.

The deep sand territory in Fairfield and Perry counties is furnishing the only good producers in Southeastern Ohio. In the Bremen end of the field in Fairfield County the Rodenhafer Oil and Gas Company has completed No. 15 on the David Rodenhafer farm, and it produced 255 barrels in the first twenty-four hours. The Marion Oil and Gas Company's No. 3 on the Emma Elder farm produced 60 barrels the first twenty-four hours.

At Junction City, Perry County, the Southern Oil Company is starting a second well on the W. S. Alcock property. In the same locality the Dollar Oil company is starting a garden lot, located 150 feet north of the producer on the Marckhardt lot.

On town lots a few miles from Bremen there is a production of 14 wells, each of 15 or more barrels a day. The total production is 130 barrels a day. The Marion sand field is not increasing much or more as when a number of large producers

In the Grantsville district, Monroe County, have drilled their test on the W. W. Bequerdine farm and have started in. In the same district the Carron Oil company has now drilled its test on the L. C. McHugh farm, a duster in all sand. In the W. M. Morris farm, Washington County, A. R. Peeler & Co. have drilled their second season farm strong and have a very good number.

RAILROAD BILL IN CONFERENCE

Powers of Committee Practically Limitless.

ALDRICH IS IN CONTROL

President Satisfied That He Will Get a Good Bill—Feels That He Has Triumphed All Along the Line—Insurgents Fearful of Conference Committee.

Washington, June 11.—The agreement of the railroads to withdraw their advanced rate schedules, the special message of President Taft asking congress to make immediately effective the section of the railroad bill empowering the interstate commerce commission to pass on rates before put into force and the close vote in the house by which the senate bill was rejected and a conference ordered constitute three of the most important moves that have occurred now or at any time during the government's fight to curb the railroads. The insurgents assert that the three events constitute virtually a railroad victory. They believe that sending the railroad bill to conference, where it will be subject to the tender mercies of Aldrich, Elkins, Mann and Wagner, means that it will be emasculated and that most of the good points gained during the long fight will be lost. They blame the president's special message for it all. Had that not been sent in, they say, the house would have accepted the senate bill, which they regard as an infinitely better measure than they are ever likely to get from the conference committee, dominated as it will be by Aldrich. As for the president, he looks upon the entire transaction as a great triumph. He has forced the railroads to terms and feels sure that the conference committee will send him a bill he can sign.

Insurgents in Fighting Mood.

Just what can the conference committee do to the railroad bill? It is supposed to have no power over sections on which the two houses have agreed. But as there is scarcely a clause in the entire measure where there are not at least verbal differences, the power of the conference committee is practically limitless. The conferees are Representatives Mann, Wagner and Adamson on the part of the house and Senators Elkins, Aldrich and Foster on the part of the senate. Adamson and Foster are Democrats. There is a possibility that if the conference committee does not arrive at an agreement satisfactory to the progressives of the two houses the report will be rejected and the whole fight made over again. The insurgents are in a pugnacious mood and will not relinquish without a struggle the ground they battled so long to win.

Calling La Follette to Order.

One of the byproducts of the fight in the house to adopt the senate bill was an indirect threat by the speaker to rule Senator La Follette off the floor. The Wisconsin senator came over to counsel his followers in the other end of the capitol as his habit when any important insurgent fight is up. The moment he appeared on the floor a body of progressives gathered about him and a conference was soon in full blast. Senators Clapp and Bristow joined it and most of the house insurgents. Finally Uncle Joe, looking directly at La Follette, said that if visitors occupying seats in the house by courtesy did not cease conversation the rules would be enforced. La Follette glared back, but soon left the chamber.

How Uncle Joe Got Even.

The incident recalls another. One day when La Follette was speaking in the senate Uncle Joe was present. Look directly at Cannon, the Wisconsin senator said that he would desist until conversation had been concluded. Uncle Joe beat a retreat to the cloakroom. Perhaps when he called La Follette to order he was only getting even.

Another Fitzgerald Coup.

The attempt of the house insurgents and Democrats to adopt the senate bill was only defeated by six votes. Six Democrats deserted their colleagues and saved the day for the regulars. Aldrich said the day for the regulars was over.

Railroad Presidents in a Swamp.

The railroad presidents surely did run for cover after the government got out that injunction. For a few days they were camping about the White House like a bunch of candidates around a convention. First the western presidents came in, then the eastern and then the southern, although the southern had made no advances. It was almost as though the president of the United States were making treaties with an alien sovereignty. But in any event the advance in rates was held up until the interstate commerce commission could pass on the case, and that is the big thing.

Giving Congress a Bad Name.

Former Representative Samuel L. Powers of Massachusetts is giving congress a bad name. He says it is not moral. In addressing an artillery company at Boston he gave utterance to this blistering statement: "A good moral character is necessary to membership in this company, but such a character is not possible in congress; therefore I retired from congress."

A Clean Man

Outside cleanliness is less than half the battle. A man may scrub himself a dozen times a day, and still be unclean. Good health means cleanliness not only outside, but inside. It means a clean stomach, clean bowels, clean blood, a clean liver, and new, clean, healthy tissues. The man who is clean in this way will look it and act it. He will work with energy and think clean, clear, healthy thoughts.

He will never be troubled with liver, lung, stomach or blood disorders. Dyspepsia and indigestion originate in unclean stomachs. Blood diseases are found where there is unclean blood. Consumption and bronchitis mean unclean lungs.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery

prevents these diseases. It makes a man's insides clean and healthy. It cleans the digestive organs, makes pure, clean blood, and clean, healthy flesh.

It restores tone to the nervous system, and cures nervous exhaustion and prostration. It contains no alcohol or habit-forming drugs.

Constipation is the most unclean uncleanliness. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure it. They never gripe. Easy to take as candy.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

The Grateful Lioness

We're Playing Follow My Leader

DADDY," said Evelyn one evening, "I saw something today that was very pretty."

"What was that, dear?" asked daddy.

"It was a big mother cat washing a tiny wee kitten," said Evelyn, "and it was very sweet to see what good care she took of the little kitty and to hear the kitty purr."

"Most animals are very fond of their little ones," said daddy, "and will fight hard if any one tries to hurt them. A friend of mine who worked in a menagerie once told me an amusing story about a big lioness, a little lion cub, a tiger kitten and a fox terrier."

Jack and Evelyn thought they would like to hear it also, so daddy began:

"The little lion and the tiger kitty and the fox terrier all lived in a menagerie or zoo. They were very playful little creatures, and the keepers thought it would be well to keep them all in one cage, where they could play together. It was a very good arrangement, and the little animals and the people who came to see them had great fun."

"The mother lion's cage was next to the one with the young animals, and she used to keep a sharp watch on her cub."

"One day the lion cub and the little tiger and the dog were playing 'follow my leader.' You know the game, children, in which one person does something and all the others must do the same thing or as near to it as they can."

"Well, the little tiger was the leader. It spied in one corner of the cage a narrow upright beam and thought it would be great fun to climb to the top and make the others follow it. It got to the top all right by means of its tiny sharp claws and climbed down, but when the lion cub tried to get up there was trouble. It got about halfway and then slipped and fell and struck the sharp edge of a barrel. Its little side was cut, and it began to bleed and whimper."

"The tiger cub and the fox terrier were sorry for their little playmate and began to lick its face. So it stretched itself out and became quite comfortable, but it still whimpered a little. The mamma lion heard it and became excited, thinking some one was trying to hurt her baby. So she began to roar loudly, and they had to put the cub into her cage. When they opened the door for it the little fox terrier jumped in, too, as though it wanted to be sure that its little friend was all right. The lioness seemed to know that the fox terrier was her baby's playmate, and it was a very pretty sight to see her show her gratitude for his friendliness. But the little lion cub wanted to go back and play again, and soon the 'happy family' was together again."

AMUSEMENTS

KEITH VAUDEVILLE

The bill at the Auditorium theater the first three days of next week contains one of the biggest and best Keith acts and one of the best that is playing on any vaudeville stage in the country. Mme. Adelaide Hermann, widow of the late Hermann the Great, who was the greatest magician of the age and as the newspapers of the country say that Mme. Hermann is every bit as good as her husband the people of Newark will get a treat by seeing this lady do her mystifying stunts that will defy most people getting wise as to how she does them.

Chas. Hecklow, that eccentric comedian, who is a whole show himself; Goforth and Doyle, in a blackface comedy sketch, entitled "Her Demented Sister." This act is a great laugh producer and very entertaining. Coughan and Parkes, comedians and even the dancers that are of the real entertaining kind. Carnes and Robinson, singing, dancing and piano act, that you should not miss for the simple reason that with these other four acts it goes to make a good vaudeville bill, and with these five Keith acts you can be sure that it will be a good show.

The prices for such a show as we are giving to the people of Newark are the lowest that can be had in any city in the country for five acts and the motion pictures.

THE ORPHEUM.

It is a jolly bill that is offered at the Orpheum the latter part of the week, and there is not a dull moment on the entire program. The opening turn after a good reel of pictures, by Berger and Weber, comedy acrobats, do an act that has met with pronounced favor. Their work consists of a series of handstand balancing, cart wheel turns, hand springs and somersaults. Some good work with a trick house is shown. The act moves rapidly and each feat is accomplished with skill and fine form. The audiences during the entire engagement have been generous in their signs of appreciation. The Most Duo, brother and sister in singing and dancing follow and Miss Most gets a chance to introduce her cleverness as a contralto singer. The act is very pleasing and has been well received. Castle and Gilmore are last on the vaudeville portion of the program, and they introduce good comedy "room stuff." The act is the laughing bit of this clever program. For the closing of the show another good reel of pictures is exhibited.

It is with regret to his friends and patrons that Manager Fenberg announces the concluding performances at the Orpheum for the time being. With the two shows tomorrow, this popular play house will close. Mr. Fenberg announces for Messrs. Sut & Murray that the house will open for the season of 1910-1911 late in August, playing during the season the best of talent that can be had from the great Orpheum circuit. New faces will be seen, nothing being left undone to give to the patrons of this cosy house the best that money can obtain. Nothing will be too good for Newark. During the summer improvements will be made at the theater and when it is over everything will be bright and new.

RIGEL PARK.

Owing to the severe illness of two of the principals of the cast of "The Finding of the North Pole," it was necessary to cancel the engagement.

Manager Nick Her announces that he has booked an indoor circus for three days, opening Thursday, June 16, with a matinee Friday and Saturday afternoons. The circus comes highly recommended and Manager Her states that there will be a treat in store for the park patrons. Popular prices will prevail.

FLAG DAY.

The American Flag Association, agreeable to its custom for the past thirteen years has sent out circular letters reminding the people of the country that Tuesday, June 14th, is the 123rd anniversary of the adoption of the stars and stripes as the flag of the United States of America.

The people of our country celebrate the day more and more each year and with greater enthusiasm and there is every prospect that there will be the widest possible observance this year.

In many states, and Ohio among the number, exercises will be conducted in celebration of Flag Day.

When the flag was adopted, June 14, 1777, it had 13 stars, each one representing a state, but now the galaxy is composed of 48 stars or sovereign states.

The flag has become more and more the symbol of a mighty nation. Carried to utmost parts of the earth, it has been thrown to the breeze proclaiming liberty, and Americans cannot fail of a feeling of pride and satisfaction nor restrain the swelling of patriotism when we contrast the meaning in a far distant land of ours and other flags when displayed together.

It isn't often that a town like Kilo has a real journalist in its midst, and when it does have, it ought to be proud and thankful; but right at first Kilo was more dazed and startled than anything else. I should say that Kilo, when it acquired the real journalist, was like a nice, motherly old cow that had gone off into the back pasture with the best and mildest milk in the world to have an ordinary, gentle, wobbly-legged calf, and then found, all of a sudden, that she had given birth to a wheelerbarrow loaded with fireworks. Lighted fireworks at that, with pinwheels, and Roman candles, and skyrockettes, and red and blue lights all going off at once. At first that cow would be surprised, then she would be pained and disappointed, and then she would probably get used to it. Next to a hen or the American Public the cow is the biggest fool on earth, and will get used to anything, even a fellow journalist.

When Thomas Jefferson Jones sold the Kilo Times, he had been editing and publishing it and working the old Washington hand press for about ten years, and he had made it one of the most slow-going, respectable, deserved weekly papers in Middle Iowa, one of the kind that, if he was sick some week, he could reprint week before last's paper and nobody would notice the difference, and Kilo had got used to that kind of paper and liked it.

But Davis was a different sort of man. He saw that the Times needed a little life put into it and he put it in. On the paper for which Davis had been setting type before he came to Kilo, life meant red ink headlines, and scandal and crime on the first page, and the very first number of the Times, he got out had a "Ware of Crime" headline across the top of the first page in red, with subheads of "Kilo Police Rankly Incompetent," and "The Criminal Still At Large." That was the best he could do with the news at hand, which was that a chicken had been stolen from Doc Weaver's hen coop, but he made up for it by a startling "Later" item at the bottom of the page, in double-spaced lines, telling that just as the Times was going to press it was learned that the chicken had not been stolen, but had been discovered by Mrs. Doc Weaver under the back porch, setting on eleven eggs.

Davis hadn't been publishing the Times more than a month and a half before he saw that it was going to strain him to keep up the speed he had set for himself.

The minute Davis stepped off the train when he came to Kilo he set his eyes on Old Billings, and gave him his proper news value. There was Old Billings, bunched up on an egg case against the side of the depot, right in the heat of the sun, with his hat slipped down onto the platform and his head lolloping over onto one shoulder, and snoring like an automobile horn, with a grunt on the full blast and a tremolo on the intake, and his face and nose as red as the side of the Kilo Livery, Feed and Sale Stable.

Nobody can deny that Old Billings looked drunk. If Mrs. Jarley had wanted to make a waxwork figure and had made one with a palpator inside of it to make the chest rise and fall, and a pointer to snore, and had called it "Sleeping Off His Intoxication," she couldn't have done better than to copy Old Billings just as he looked when Davis stepped from the train. Old Billings was a perfect imitation of himself as he would have looked if he had been dead drunk, only he wasn't drunk, and never had been in his life. He was a teetotal, hard-shell, blue-ribbon, down prohibitionist. I don't wonder it riled Davis.

News values were one of the things Davis was especially strong on. A man who is a modern journalist, with gallons of red ink and fourteen assorted fonts of wooden search-head type has to be strong on it was new life and ice cream for Davis, for Casey was one of his own kind, only more so. He was a modern journalist, too, but he was a few years in advance of Davis. He didn't take the news as he found it and swell it up big. If there wasn't any news, he made some. He belonged to that school of journalism, and it is a pretty good school to belong to in a town like Kilo. As soon as he heard about Old Billings, and how Davis had put his faith in him, and how Old Billings had betrayed that faith, he went out and had a look at Old Billings. He said afterwards that he didn't care for his looks, and that if he had been looking for a man to put a news value on he would have put it on someone else; but that he had worked under many an editor and he knew they were all more or less crazy, and that Davis was boss. If Old Billings was the kind of man Davis had picked out as having a news value, the thing to do was not to complain, but to get the news out of Old Billings. Then he asked Davis about how high to set Old Billings' news value, and when he hit on the six down and whistled one long whiz, "I'm a rasher head, I looked like a good deal o' us to get out of Old Billings.

The next number of the Times had plenty of red ink, and the words at the top of the first page were "The Carnival". It took Kilo by storm, and made more talk than anything since the Civil War. Kilo hadn't known there was going to be a carnival, but it was all set forth in the Times, so there could be no doubt about it. It was to be a merchants' carnival; a tremendous celebration in honor of Kilo's prosperity, and there were to be floats, the populace in costume, and decorated streets, and fireworks in the evening, and the day was to be the 1st of October. Casey wrote the whole thing, and had an Order of March for the parade, and the whole thing was as arrantive as it could be in print. By the time the Times came out again, a week later, everyone was pretty well used to the idea, and Casey called it the "Kilo Carnival without anyone caring" and it brightened Davis up considerably to go around and talk the things up with the merchants. Casey just took things easily. All he did was to sit around in front of the grocery, or the livery stable, or the hotel, and loaf; but he always happened to sit next to Old Billings.

"Have ye ever been to Paris, Mister Billings?" he news values. Davis was. He could tell the news value of anything at the first glance. Davis could look at a man or woman once and size that person his or her news value, and he was proud of the faculty. So, as soon as he saw Old Billings asleep on the station platform, to save him his news value, and it was a big one, he expected Old Billings to furnish a great many pages of stare-heads during each year. Old Billings awoke there, looked like "crime" and "debauchery" and "our dissipated leisure classes" all in one, and Davis expected him to behave as such.

After Davis had been publishing the Kilo Times a few months he began to look worried. The strain of getting up a red-hot sensation for his first page every week in a town where nothing happened was beginning to tell on him, and all his efforts to do the modern journalistic thing had not boosted his circulation the way he had thought it would. The Times had had one hundred and six more or less paying subscribers when Thomas Jefferson Jones sold out, and after several months of Davis it had one hundred and seven; but Davis learned that the new one was less paying than any of the others. Kilo did not appreciate red ink, and that worried Davis; and news was hard to get, and that worried him; and the advertisements were actually fewer in number than they had ever been, and that made him mad.

But the thing that he hated worse of all was that Old Billings hadn't died up to his news value. It seemed to cast a frown on Davis's journalism, and every day he was afraid that Old Billings would die, and that the news in the Times would be dead.

"Now, but ain't that a pity?" said Casey. "I was beginnin' to feel bad, I was there once when I was young, an' I was just wishin' you had been. Them French do be known how to run a carnival better than what Davis does. I'm disappointed he ain't seen a Paris carnival. Mister Billings. Ye would be the kind of a man could tell Davis a thing or two about it."

"I guess maybe I could," said Old Billings with satisfaction. "I got a remarkable memory for things. I remember in the fall of 'sixty-eight—"

"If ye had been to Paris," said Casey, "ye could tell Davis and it that the confetti. An' ye would do so. No one that has been to Paris, like ye would have been, would forget to tell Davis about that there confetti. 'Twould be the first thing ye would tell him about, wouldn't it now?"

"I guess I wouldn't let nothin' much stand in the way of my tellin' him," said Old Billings. "Don't you reckon he knows about that there—that what-you-may-callin'?"

"'Twould be a hell of a sight," said Old Billings, "but I guess he never having been to Paris. I want to be the one in Kilo, but you an' me do know about it. Mister Billings. An' a grand sight it is to be sure to see the armfuls of it an' the strings covered with the confetti an' all have go been on th' shoulders in Paris come Mardi Gras—but, but I prould me ye say ye have no confetti. 'Twould be a hell of a sight, an' the plenty of carnival with nothin' else but confetti. I would be a darn for a carnival without confetti, Mr. Billings. Would you?"

"For me, if I would," said Old Billings. "I'm surprised Davis an' me thinkin' it afore us."

Casey waved his hand in the air to dismiss Davis from consideration.

"Ye know what he is like?" he said. "Thinkin' of nothing but tellin' the Times of his. I wish—I wish—"

He paused restlessly on the word, and then his face brightened and he turned to Old Billings and lowered his voice to a whisper.

"An' when you rats an' I," he exclaimed, "There would be no motor in it for a cent, Mr. Billings. If they had a monopoly of the confetti business for Kilo an' all, the people would be after goin' crazy over it, they would take to it so. Ten cents a bag we could get for it, and to think it costs nothin' to make. But, no," he said, letting his face grow sad again. "I have not the time to make it."

printing big headlines over unimportant news so long that he could hardly believe that Old Billings wasn't working around somewhere, sort of playing a joke on him, making the news look true. But Old Billings wasn't. He was down cellar cutting out confetti, and getting mighty tired of the job. He didn't have the right kind of shears nor the right kind of fingers to cut out confetti the size of a lead pencil end, and he was getting restless again. He had torn up so much paper that he was up to his arms in it, and he told Casey that he didn't want to seem lazy about making confetti, but that from what he knew of Kilo he judged he had about all the confetti the town would need for a one-day carnival, and that if he tore up much more he would be swamped and would likely drown in confetti. He became quite ugly about it, so Casey suggested to Davis that he had got about the full news value out of Old Billings, and it would be a good thing to let him drop now, and try some other sensation.

But Davis knew better. He was right in the heart of the mystery, and he wasn't going to give up while a mystery was still mysterious; so Casey had to go down cellar and try to start Old Billings going again. It was hard work. Old Billings said he had used up the whole pile of old exchanges, and he thought that was more than any young fellow could have done.

Old Billings sat on the table growling to himself for a while after Casey went upstairs, and then he took up one of the papers that Casey had just brought down, and the headlines looked at him. He did not have to look at them, for they were Davis's Times headlines, and they fairly yelled at Old Billings that Old Billings was murdered, and that he was the prize mystery of the century.

Old Billings thought it over for a few minutes and then he climbed as far up the cellar stairs as he could and pounded on the underside of the trapdoor with the shears. Casey let the press stop and came down. He saw at once what was the matter and what a mistake he had made in not censoring the exchanges before he had handed them to Old Billings.

"If ye was up there, there wouldn't be any excitement," said Casey. "Ye can't be murdered an' stand 'round listenin' to how ye was murdered at the same time, Mr. Billings. If ye hadn't been down here ye wouldn't have been murdered up there, an' as long as ye are in good health ye oughtn't to complain. Be a good feller and make some more confetti."

Casey sat down on the stairs and looked at Old Billings sadly.

"An' spoil th' monopoly!" he said. "Go on out then, an' have everybody know about confetti, an' have every livin' soul in Kilo start to make their own before night! Go on, Mr. Billings! An' to th' dickens with our profits!"

"I'm goin' out," repeated Old Billings, doggedly.

"Go on out then!" urged Casey. "An' is half an hour them sheriffs an' marshals an' all will find out where ye have been, an' ye will be th' joke of th' town an' laughed at, an' no mystery at all, an' our confetti monopoly all gone t' smash. I didn't think it of ye, Mr. Billings. 'Tis not what I would do."

"I'm goin' out," reiterated Old Billings.

"An' you just gittin' t' have th' finest news value of any man in Kilo!" exclaimed Casey, disgustedly. "Is that th' way ye do in Kilo? Is that th' way ye do, when ye could go on just as ye wish an' still have them look on ye with wonder an' awe, an' not spoil th' confetti monopoly?"

"I want to go out," said Old Billings.

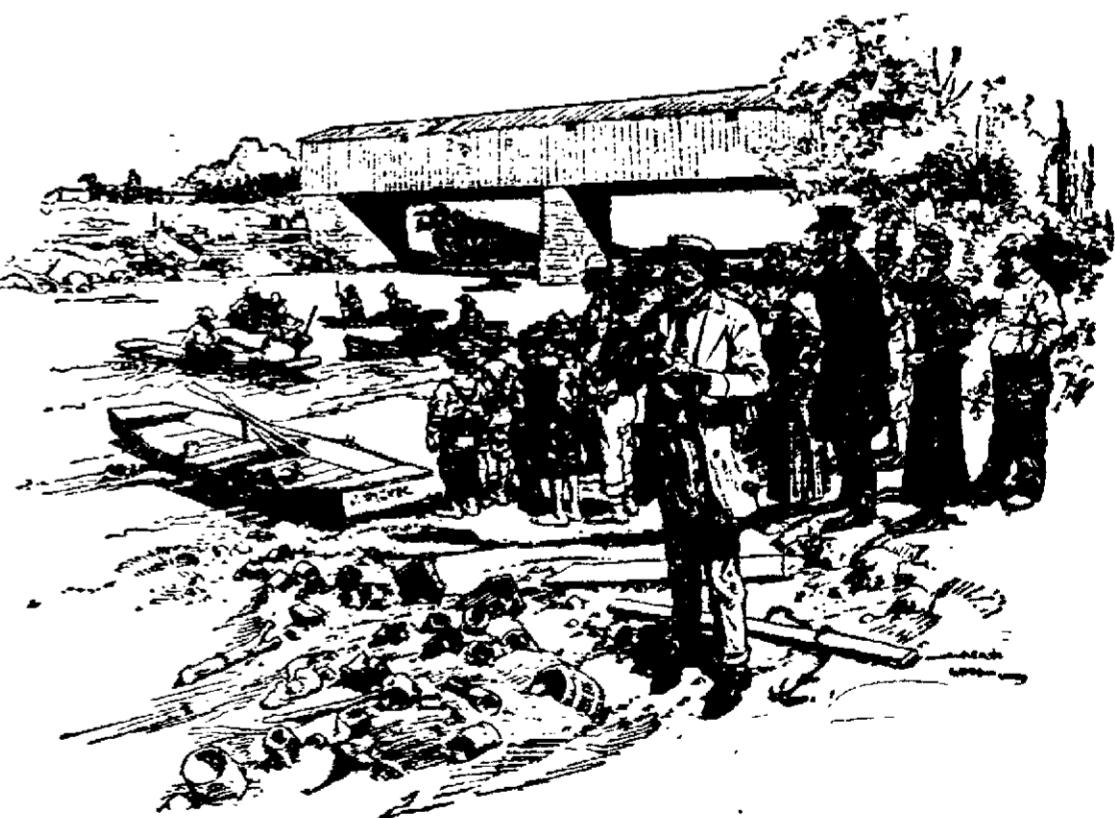

"An' where will ye say ye have been all this time? In Davis's cellar tearin' up confetti. An' so would I, Mr. Billings. If I was in yer place, but I would not say it that way. I would let them find me in th' cellar, an' not a word would I say about confetti. 'Sure,' I would say, 'is this me or not me? Am I Old Billings, or am I a rat?' Then they all looks surprised and interested. 'A rat?' they says. 'Yes,' ye says, 'am I a rat, or ain't I?' The last I remember I was a rat." An' then they points to th' paper ye have torn up an' they say, 'sure, he thinks he is a rat!' 'Tis a wonderful upsettin' of th' mind he has had. Some one must have took him out in th' woods an' soaked him on th' head an' upset his mind for a spell.' Ye would be havin' a full page or two in th' Times, about it," said Casey, enthusiastically, "an' no one would guess this was confetti at all. We could hold onto th' monopoly."

"I won't be a rat," said Old Billings grumpily.

"Well, then," said Casey, coaxingly, "be a squirrel. A squirrel is a pretty animal. Ye ought t' like it, one, Mr. Billings."

"I won't be a squirrel," said Old Billings.

"Then will ye be a nice little bird, makin' a pretty nest in th' cellar. Be a canary bird, Mr. Billings," coaxed Casey.

"The Men of the Town Hold a Meeting and Went in a Body to Drag the River."

been chucked into it in the last seven years, and it was a wonder they didn't drag out Old Billings. They would have dragged him out if he hadn't been in the cellar of the Times building, wading around knee deep in confetti. But it made a good extra for the Times, and by the time Old Billings was thigh deep in torn-up exchanges, Kilo was reading the list of the men who had dragged the river, and the biography of Old Billings, and the full account of the dragging of the river. Casey was so proud of it that he took Old Billings's rest.

You can do a good deal with a vest if you know how, and have had a thorough, modern journalistic education, and can pick up a stray chicken that needs its head chopped off for the good of the public. There is enough blood in a chicken to make a strong, agile murder mystery. If it is applied in the right way, and the way Casey had Davis organize the search party to scour the woods on the other side of the river from where the coat had been found, did credit to his training. Kilo had not been mentioned in the big city papers since the cyclone of '78, but the day after Old Billings's vest was seen, people all over the United States were reading of Kilo's murder mystery, and was it murder or suicide?

Kilo was prouder than a peacock of her murder mystery, and especially when the county sheriff came down from Jefferson and joined in the heat for the remains of Old Billings; and Davis was like a new man. He hardly had time to eat. He ran around town and discovered clues everywhere, and Casey worked so hard turning out extra editions of the Times that he scarcely had time to feed Old Billings properly. He spent all his time between the press and the cellar, for the old man was getting restless again. He had torn up so much paper that he was up to his arms in it, and he told Casey that he didn't want to seem lazy about making confetti, but that from what he knew of Kilo he judged he had about all the confetti the town would need for a one-day carnival, and that if he tore up much more he would be swamped and would likely drown in confetti. ### OBITUARY

MRS. ETHEL SOLENBERGER, Hanover, O., June 11. The angel of death has again visited our community. When the aged pass from us we feel that it is but the fulfilling of the divine law—the garnering of the ripened sheaf. But when one so young, so beautiful, so promising, is taken away we can hardly understand, yet we know that God, the Father, rules, and that He careth for His children. Ethel Fry was born Sept. 1, 1883, and died June 3, 1910, aged 26 years, 9 months and 4 days. She was united in marriage with Dan Solenberger, Nov. 30, 1905. The following winter she, with her husband, united with the Liberty M. E. church, and has ever since been a churchgoer to the very end.

Ethel was a happy and contented wife. She was always trying to make the lives of others brighter and happier. Her bright face and pleasant manners won for her a large circle of friends. Just 12 days ago a little baby came into the home, a gift sent from God. But the mother was not spared to bless and cheer and train her little one. Her life was given for her child.

Besides the daughter, Jane Marie, the husband and father, three sisters, Mrs. Elsie Strosnider of Newark, Mrs. Grace Harris of Marietta, O., and Delpha Fry, two brothers, Cliff and Dewey Fry, and her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Fry and a large number of friends are left to mourn her departure.

Mrs. Taylor, president of juvenile work, also gave an excellent talk on the work.

Nearly Wild with Painful, Burning Eruption—Half Her Hair Fell Out and Combing It Was Torture—Feared She Would Be Bald.

IN DESPAIR UNTIL CURED BY CUTICURA

"Just about two years ago, some form of humor appeared on my scalp. The beginning was a slight itching but it grew steadily worse until when I combed my hair, the scalp became raw and the ends of the comb-teeth would be wet with blood. Most of the time there was an intolerable itching, in a painful, burning way, very much as a bad, raw burn, if any will itch and smart when first beginning to heal. Combing my hair was positive torture. My hair was long and tangled terribly because of the blood and sores. This continued growing worse and over half my hair fell out. I was in despair, really afraid of becoming totally bald."

"Sometimes the pain was so great that, when partially awake, I would scratch the worst places so that my finger-tips would be bloody. I could not sleep well and, after being asleep a short time, that awful stinging pain would commence and then I would wake up nearly wild with the torture. A neighbor said it must be a skin trouble. Having used Cuticura Soap merely as a toilet soap, I decided to order a set of Cuticura Remedies—Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Pills. I used them according to directions for perhaps six weeks, then left. As the disease seemed to be eradicated. But toward spring, eighteen months ago, there was a slight return of the scalp humor. I commenced the Cuticura treatment at once, so had very little trouble. On my scalp I used about one-half a cake of Cuticura Soap and half a box of Cuticura Ointment in all. For the first time I took six or seven bottles of Cuticura Pills and the last time three bottles—neither an expensive or tedious treatment. Since then I have had no scalp trouble of any kind. Standing up with my hair unbound, it comes to my knees and had it not been for Cuticura I should doubtless be wholly bald."

"This is a voluntary, unsolicited testimonial and I take pleasure in writing it, hoping my experience may help someone else. Miss L. M. Brown, R. F. D. 1, Liberty, Me., Oct. 26, 1909.

KEEPING TABS FOR HOUSE-KEEPERS.

Wash the pots and kettles while hot, time and labor are thus saved.

The range should be wiped carefully after cooking greasy foods. This makes it bright. It cleans without the constant blacking. Remove soot from compartments, if the ovens are desired to heat properly.

To keep chopping bowls from splitting, they must be moistened a bit. The dryness is the cause of the wood cracking.

Steel cooking utensils must be wiped perfectly dry. When put away for a time, to prevent rust, a bit of vaseline rubbed on will preserve them.

Never permit enameled ware to go dry on the stove, as that chips the enamel. Use wooden spoons for mixing purposes in enameled or china bowls, the constant striking on the side of these bowls causes them to chip off or wear away.

Sharpen your scissors that will not cut on the neck of a heavy bottle. Take the bottle in one hand and the shears in the other. Open the shears wide and thrust the bottle neck as far back between the blades as possible, then close the shears to slip along the blades to the point and out.

Repeat treatment ten or fifteen times. These may not be the best sharpeners on the market, but better than none, and very cheap for ready means.

To keep bread and butter fresh and moist put in a cool place; cover closely with serviette or clean cloth, bring out in cold water, and many hours after it will be found moist as when cut.

PREPARATIONS FOR FIELD DAY AT OLD DENISON

Queen of the Day to Be Taken to Beaver Field in Auto—News of Historic Granville.

Granville, June 11.—Field day on Denison's program this year will be a great event, the weather permitting. But it seems to be a Field day, with Denison Day. Decoration day, it always has a flavor of funning, but it is often said, "I wonder if Monday will be a Field day." Formerly Field day was one of the most important of the school term, but in the last few years, the school day's entertainment has been losing. The committee has arranged an attractive program and is making the prizes and honors so general as is desirable as possible. All the events will be hotly contested and with the addition of a few new features, the day will be one of great interest. As has been stated, Miss Sue Theodore has been chosen Queen for the Field day, and will be drawn to Beaver Field in an automobile, handsomely decorated with flowers, and covered with towels. The court ladies also selected are Nina Bongard, Marie Porter and Zerilda Goodhart.

It is difficult to do two things at once, which is the reason so few of us ever sing and forget.

DEATH RESULTS FROM INJURIES TO A FOREIGNER

Milie Liveroni, a foreigner, who for some time past has been employed on the Pennsylvania work train, was the victim of a terrible accident at an early hour Saturday morning, which later resulted in his death.

Just as the second section of Panhandle passenger train No. 21, westbound, was pulling into the station, Liveroni, who is aged about forty years, darted across the track in front of the engine. He was in the act of springing upon the south platform, when the engine struck him and he fell forward on the platform, with his legs on the track. The engine passed over them, crushing them to a pulp. Bowers' ambulance was quickly on hand and took the injured man to the Sanitarium, where the legs were amputated at the juncture of the middle and upper third of the thigh. Dr. Harbottle administered the anesthetic and Dr. J. W. Davis did the work of amputating.

Liveroni died at 11:30 o'clock and the remains were taken to Bowers' undertaking establishment, where they were prepared for interment.

At this time no arrangements have been made for the funeral.

Friday morning Dr. E. W. Hunt, president of Denison University, visited the High school in Newark during chapel exercises and delivered a fine talk to the students. After the conclusion of his remarks the Rev. Mr. Bennett, pastor of the Newark Fifth Street Baptist church, in a witty speech, presented pennants to the two High school debating teams. It was an especially handsome pennant that was presented to the members of the negative team, that was victorious over Zanesville High and Oberlin Academy. Dr. Hunt, in his remarks, emphasized the value of an education by presenting and answering the question, "What is it all for?" His remarks were very interesting and were received with much enthusiasm by the students. It is a fact that no speaker ever appeared on the High school platform who is more warmly welcomed than Dr. Hunt.

DAUGHTER BORN.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Callahan, living at the corner of Hoover and Fifth streets, are the parents of a baby girl, born Thursday.

A Woman's Great Idea is how to make herself attractive. But, without health, it is hard for her to be lovely in face, form or temper. A weak, sickly woman will be nervous and irritable. Constipation and kidney poisons show in pimples, blotches, skin eruptions and a wretched complexion. But Electric Bitters always prove a goddess to women who want health, beauty and friends. They regulate stomach, liver and kidneys, purify the blood; give strong nerves, bright eyes, pure breath, smooth, velvety skin, lovely complexion, good health. Try them, 50c. at F. B. Hall's.
